

Who Controls the Flow of Funding for Alaska Schools?

Legislature

The Alaska Legislature decides how much money school districts will receive each year.

STATE REVENUE

Governor

Alaska's governor has the power to reduce school funding by veto.

Local Government

Organized communities with a tax base pay a required minimum to maximum local contribution to school districts.

LOCAL FUNDS

Federal Government

Federal funds are provided through programs that support student needs.

FEDERAL FUNDS

School Boards

School boards decide how the district will distribute the funds in their bucket.

If your school district's funding bucket is empty, talk with the people who control the flow.
